Substation Project

Recent Awards

York continues to deliver award-winning projects with the latest being the Yaamba Road Pedestrian Overpass and the Northern Expressway.

Yaamba Overpass – multi-award winning project

The project has already claimed a Queensland CCF Earth Award in Category 3 – Projects valued between $5 - $20 million, which is for excellence in construction and environmental management.

Adding to this the project has now claimed one of the top honours in the Australian Institute of Architects' 2011 Central Queensland Regional Architecture Awards.

CCF Earth Award for the Northern Expressway

York Civil was awarded the South Australian CCF Earth Award for the Northern Expressway project. The project won on Category 5 - projects greater than $75m.

The Earth Awards recognise construction excellence with a particular focus on environmental management, community outcomes and innovation.

York shares this award with joint venture partner Fulton Hogan and the Department for Transport, Energy and Infrastructure (South Australian Government).

Northern Expressway

IPWEA SA Excellence Award for the Northern Expressway

The Northern Expressway project recently received the Institute of Public Works Engineering Australia, SA (IPWEA SA) Excellence Awards at its Annual Dinner. The award encourages and recognises excellence in the innovation, development, completion and management of public works projects and the people involved.

York Civil Makes Indigenous Links

York Civil and Indigenous Links have come together to form a strategic partnership to encourage Indigenous employment and ultimately develop a commercially viable Indigenous Enterprise.

York has successfully worked with Indigenous Links on past projects like the Northern Expressway to assist with Indigenous employment. However, this exciting new joint venture is to take Indigenous employment beyond just one-off job placements but into skills training and ultimately into Indigenous Enterprise – a stand-alone business.

York is a major sponsor of the Port Adelaide Magpies which supports Indigenous youth in the local community.

Queensland Grows

York Civil's operations in Queensland are ever-expanding. Leveraging from the award-winning Yaamba Overpass and the ECI for Innisfail Waste Water Treatment Plant Upgrade which is well under construction.

York has had several recent project wins, including contracts for BHP Billiton Mitsubishi Alliance (BMA).

The projects involve site services and civil works in support of the expanding mine sites. The projects are part of a $5 billion expansion of metallurgical coal projects in the Bowen Basin.

Delivering New Train Stations

York is starting to work with the Department for Transport, Energy and Infrastructure (DTEI) to deliver the design and construction of the new train station at Elizabeth as part of a $40 million investment on the Gawler line, north of Adelaide.

The upgrade will include improved lighting and CCTV surveillance, a fully-enclosed overpass with lifts and stairs and new platforms designed to minimise the step and gap between platforms and trains.

Supporting the Community in Roxby Downs

York along with other local companies have recently come together to build a new indoor teaching and rehabilitation pool for the Roxby Council.

York donated resources and materials to help build the pool including excavation of the site, steel fixing and concrete works, backfilling and finishing works. While the pool will benefit all in the community it is particularly targeted to assist the more vulnerable as it aims to teach young people to swim and to assist in rehabilitating people with injury.

York has been a part of the Roxby Downs community for 15 years delivering projects both on the mine site and the township. York has a branch office and yard at Olympic Dam and has dedicated local resources including engineering and construction staff, and plant and equipment.
